Seceta și deficitul de apă

În ultimele decenii, Cipru s-a confruntat cu o scădere a precipitațiilor și o creștere a temperaturilor, ceea ce a dus la scăderea nivelului rezervoarelor de apă și la creșterea cererii pentru desalinizarea apei.

Degradarea materialelor

Expunerea prelungită la condiții climatice extreme poate duce la erodarea pietrei și a frescelor, afectând astectul și stabilitatea siturilor arheologice.

Turismul nesustenabil

Numărul mare de vizitatori poate contribui la degradarea monumentelor și la poluarea mediului înconjurător, amplificând efectele schimbărilor climatice.

Plajele în pericol

Plajele din Cipru sunt în pericol din cauza schimbărilor climatice, deoarece creșterea nivelului mării și acțiunea valurilor erodează țărmurile nisipoase. Acest lucru a determinat un avertisment supărător din partea cercetătorilor de la "Universitatey of the Aegean", Grecia, că până la 72% din plajele insulei ar putea dispărea până în 2100.

În imagine se evidențiază retragerea unei plaje de pe coasta de nord a Cirpului, pe o perioadă de 11 ani, cu ajutorul imaginilor din satelit.

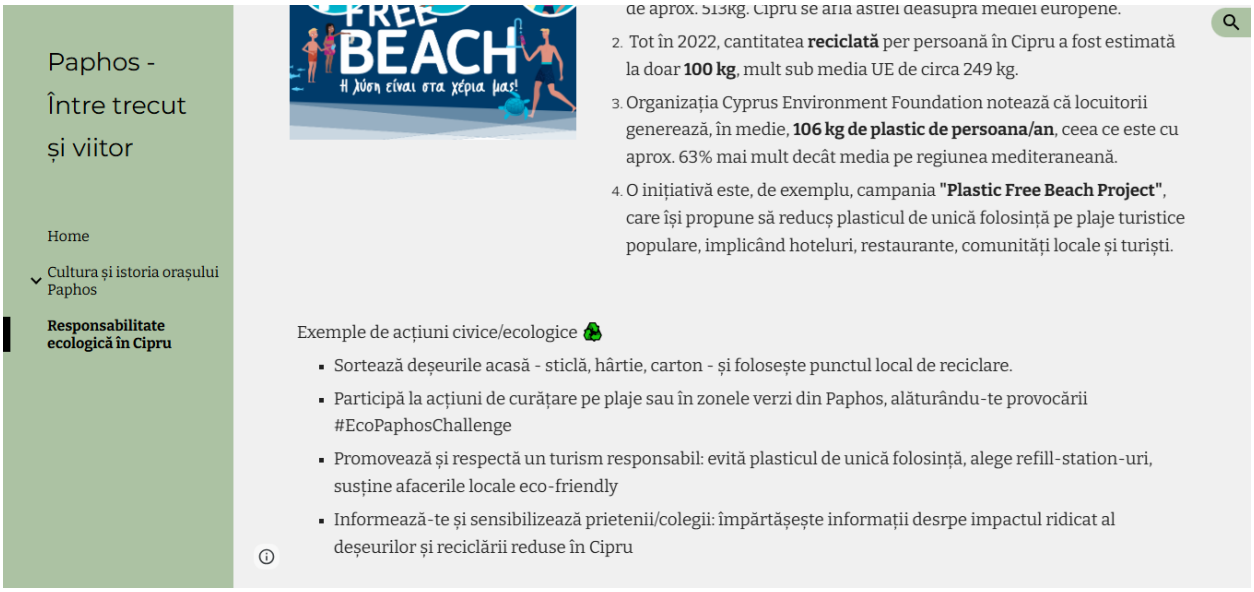

Pentru a contracara aceste amenințări, autoritățile cipriote și organizațiile internaționale impelemntează diverse strategii:

- Restaurarea și întreținerea regulată: Intervenții periodice pentru a conserva structurile și pentru a preveni deteriorarea acestora.
- Monitorizarea condițiilor climatice: Utilizarea tehnologiilor moderne pentru a urmări schimbările climatice și impactul acestora asupra siturilor.
- Promovarea turismului sustenabil: Educarea vizitatorilor și implementarea de practici ecologice pentrua reduce impactul negativ al turismului.

Context

Colonie britanică începând din 1878, Cipru a devenit independent în 1960. Regatul Unit, Grecia, Turcia și liderii ciprioți au negociat independența insulei în cadrul unei Constituții. A fost creat un sistem care interzicea, pe de-o parte, unirea cu Grecia sau Turcia și pe de altă parte împărțea insulei, dar care însă s-a prăbușit la sfârșitul anului 1963 din cauza violențelor intercomunitare. În decursul întregului deceniu 1960-70, forțele radicale ale ambelor minorități din Cipru cresc în influență, taberele aducând clandestin pe insulă militari greci, respectiv turci, pentru antrenament și instrucție, ca o anticipare a ceea ce avea să urmeze.

La 15 iulie 1974 are loc o lovitură de stat, în cursul căreia membrii Gărzii Naționale Cipriote iau cu asalt palatul prezidențial, dorind asasinarea „moderatului" Makarios (Arhiepiscopul Macarie al III-lea, primul preşedinte al Republicii Cipru).

Desăşurare

În urma loviturii de stat, susținută de Grecia, Turcia a invocat statutul de putere garantată și a intervenit militar. Operațiunea era cunoscută de către forțele armate turce sub numele de cod Atilla Harekâtı (Operațiunea Atilla), și prima etapă a avut loc începând cu 20 iulie 1974.

După un armistițiu temporar urmează a doua etapă (14-16 august), în care turcii își extind controlul asupra aprox. 37% din teritoriu.

Grecia, Turcia și Marea Britanie, puterile garante ale statului independent Cipru, se întâlnesc între 25 și 30 iulie la Geneva pentru negocieri, în vederea încetării conflictului, căutându-se garanții că Turcia nu va extinde zona de ocupație, grecii se vor retrage din enclave și că se va organiza o nouă conferință de pace în luna august.

Consecințe

Imagini de actualitate din Cipru, în urma invaziei turcilor

În urma acestor evenimente, 200.000 de persoane au fost strămutate, iar insula a rămas până astăzi divizată. Linia Verde, o zonă demilitarizată ONU, separă cele două părți.

În 1983, nordul insulei s-a declarat unilateral independent sub denumirea de Republica Turcă a Ciprului de Nord (RTNC), un stat recunoscut doar de Turcia, care menține mii de soldați pe insulă.

Națiunile Unite, ale căror forțe de menținere a păcii patrulează în zona tampon, fac presiuni în vederea unor noi tratative între RTCN și Republica Cipru, singurul stat recunoscut pe plan internațional și membru al UE din 2004, dar care, în realitate, își exercită autoritatea doar asupra părții sudice.

Tradiții

Komboloi ("mărgelele pentru griji") au mai multe utilizări în cultura greacă, inclusiv:

- pentru relaxare, distracție și, în general, petrecerea timpului
- ca amuletă, pentru a se proteja de ghinion
- pentru persoanele care doresc să se lase de fumat
- ca semn al puterii și prestigiului social.

Mărgelele pot fi confecționate din diverse materiale, inclusiv pietre prețioase, scoici, coral, os și lemn.

Komboloi

Spargerea farfuriilor

Spargerea farfuriilor este o tradiție străveche, răspândită în multe insule grecești, dar regăsită și în Cipru. Folosită la nunți și alte petreceri și sărbători, farfuriile sunt aruncate pe podea și sparte în timp ce se cântă și se dansează. Înainte de farfurii, erau aruncate cuțite, în deosebi spre picioarele artiștilor de pe scenă, aruncătorul strigând „Opa!" în semn de respect față de cei ce cântau, dar și de satisfacție pentru spectacolul oferit.

Personalități

Fostul președinte al Ciprului, cunoscut pentru eforturile sale de reconciliere și pace între comunitățile greacă și turcă din Cipru, având un impact semnificativ asupra procesului de reunificare.

Dimitris Christofias

Un distins om de știință și om politic cipriot, a avut un impact semnificativ în domeniul sănătății și al cercetării medicale. Contribuțiile sale în acest domeniu au fost recunoscute la nivel internațional.

Concluzie

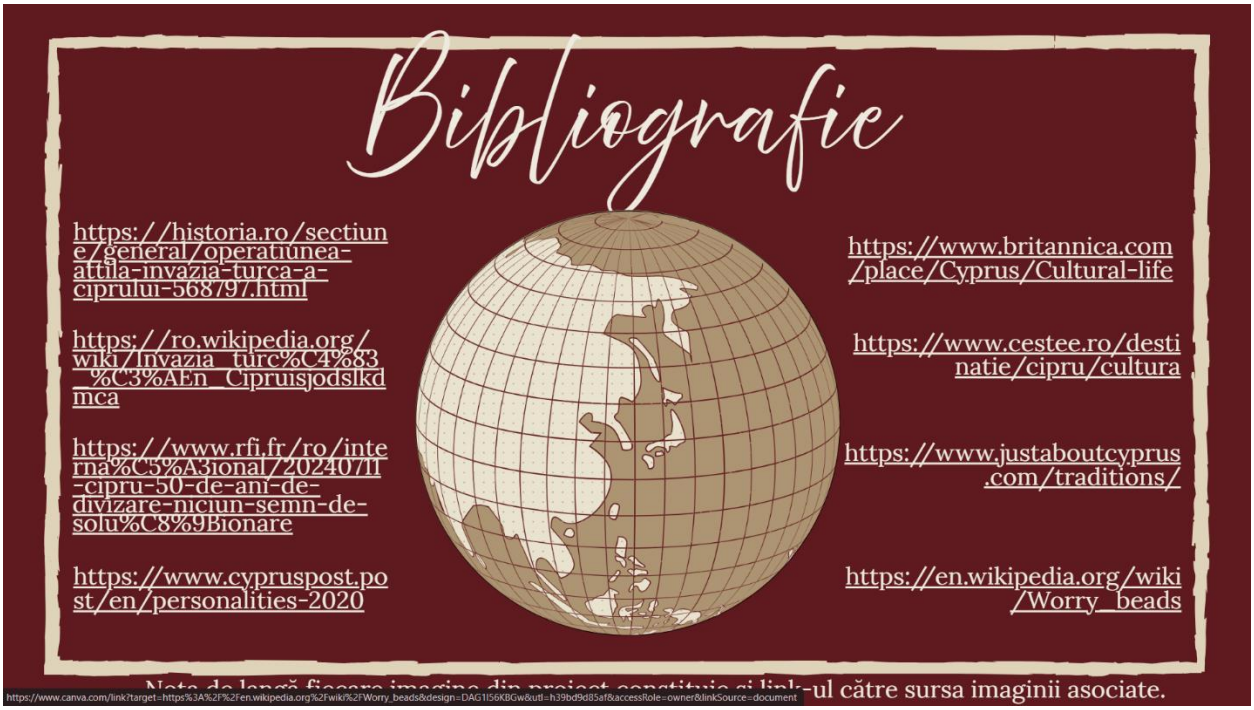

Cipru este o insulă cu o istorie bogată și o cultură unică, influențată de civilizațiile greacă, romană, bizantină și otomană. Tradițiile, arta și ospitalitatea locuitorilor reflectă această diversitate. Cultura cipriotă ramâne un simbol al armoniei dintre trecut și prezent, unind moștenirea antică cu spiritul modern.
